How will the story continue?
How does online access to personal medical information play a part in this story, and how would it affect your life?

Students from Uppsala University and Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology, USA, have worked across borders and in cooperation with Uppsala Landsting to produce a report investigating the many aspects of making personal medical information available to patients directly via Internet.
The report will be sent to the EU council.

We chose to call the project Remote Access to Patient Information Digitally or “RAPID” in short.
