Online course in HCI

- Basic psychological theory on how humans and computers interact
- How we can use this knowledge to construct usable systems
- Methods and tools for interface design
- Theoretical, with focus on practical application in individual projects
- Our English-language HCI introduction course

- Online, no physical meetings
- Active participation is required; continuous presentations of assignments
- Best fitted for students that can not attend to onsite lectures at the university
- The teaching is based on self studies and peer-reviewing; lectures on the course web
- Supervising is made online